CHALLENGE: Write the two sentences as one sentence, using a conjunction to join them.

Russia is a huge country. It stretches from eastern Europe all the way to the Pacific Ocean. In fact, it is only 55 miles from the United States at one point. They are separated by a narrow stretch of water called the Bering Strait. This sometimes freezes over in the middle of winter, so it should be possible to walk from one country to the other. In truth, this could not really happen for two reasons. First, the two countries are not very friendly towards each other. Second, the strong sea currents mean the ice is not stable enough to cross safely.

1. What sometimes happens to the Bering Strait in the middle of winter?

2. What might it be possible to do in the middle of winter?

---

3. What makes the ice unstable?
