9 Parental Guidance

9.1 Academies must not discriminate against disabled students for a reason relating to their disability. They should promote the inclusion of disabled students in their admission arrangements and in all aspects of school life.

Accessibility Plans and 'Reasonable Adjustments'

Academies will vary widely in how accessible they are to individual disabled students. Parents and carers should check what improvements have been made and what is being planned when considering which school they would like their child to attend.

Every school must have an Accessibility Plan which shows how they intend to improve accessibility for disabled students. The plan must be published and you can ask to see it. It will outline how the school will:

- improve the physical environment
- make improvements in the provision of information
- increase access to the curriculum

Academies can also increase access for individual students by making 'reasonable adjustments'. These can be simple changes for instance, making sure lessons are on the ground floor if one of the students uses a wheelchair and the school does not have a lift.

They may also be able to offer assistance during assessments or exams, so that students are assessed fairly during their course.

You should always talk to the school to discuss what it can reasonably do to include your child.

Improvements to the Physical Environment

Changes to the physical environment that a school could make to increase access might include:

- lighting and paint schemes to help visually impaired children
- lifts and ramps to help physically impaired children
- carpeting and acoustic tiling of classrooms to help hearing impaired students

Improving the Way Information is Delivered to Disabled Students

Information that is normally provided in writing (such as handouts, timetables and textbooks) can be made more accessible by providing it:

- in Braille
- in large print
- on audiotape
- using a symbol system

Increased Access to the Curriculum

Adjustments that would help disabled students have better access to the curriculum might include:

- changes to teaching and learning arrangements
- classroom organisation
- timetabling
- support from other students

Assistive Technology

Technology suited to your child's needs can help them learn faster and more easily. This can increase their access to the curriculum. Examples of technology that can help include:

- touch-screen computers, joysticks and tracker balls
- easy-to-use keyboards
- interactive whiteboards
- text-to-speech software
- Braille-translation software
- software that connects words with pictures or symbols

Some Academies may already have this kind of technology available, or may be planning to get it. Arrangements for distributing resources and funding for equipment vary throughout the UK. If your child has an Education, Health & Care plan (EHCP), the help on the EHCP must be provided. This may include special equipment.

School Transport

The same basic rules apply to all children. But LAs can make a decision to provide transport on a case by case basis for a disabled child. You will assess your child's needs when making a decision, taking into account your child's health and/or disability and their age. If your child is offered school transport, the vehicle should have the relevant equipment to suit your child's needs - for example ramps or lifts.

Most local councils also provide escorts on school transport if needed.

You may be able to get help with your own costs for taking your child to school. Your LA will be able to tell you if this is possible.

Some LAs have different transport policies concerning students going to special Academies.

If Your Child Cannot Attend School for Medical Reasons

If your child cannot attend the school because of health problems, your Local Authority is responsible to help them to continue their education. This could be achieved through home schooling, for example.
